Repeated Course Option

A student may register for a course in which he or she has already received a low passing grade or an F. Before repeating a course, consult with your academic advisor. Individual colleges and schools may have stricter policies regarding repeated courses. When an undergraduate student repeats a course, the grade earned in the repeated course replaces, in the calculation of the quality point average, the grade earned in the previous attempt at the course. Both the initial grade/course and the repeated grade/course continue to appear on the transcript as an accurate representation of academic history. Credit hours toward graduation are earned only on the basis of the grade in the last registration.

Students who entered UDM prior to Fall 2011-12 are limited to four repeated courses during their undergraduate degree program following their catalog of entry. Those student who begin their studies at UDM starting in Fall 2011-12 have no limits academically on the number of courses they repeat but there may be financial aid restrictions on repeating courses when a passing grade has already been earned.
